Patrex returns to City Wall with his Bombasto EP, four absolute quality slices of deep, deep techno. Only after listening to this EP will you be able to really appreciate the time and focus that was required to achieve such an immense quality and perfection within the sound. Hour after hour has been poured into each synth and SFX. Furthermore the beats and percussion ooze care and attention with their neat signatures and funky switches. Patrex has gone back to his roots over this work, listening to old productions and live sets by the likes of Aphex Twin to reignite his interest in producing visceral sounds that have soul and carry weight. Elsewhere Patrex has a release called Signal out on Vusumzi Records and has also been working on new projects with Lady Vusumzi under the Code 9000 name.

Bombasto ▶

Bombastic vibes right here! Bombasto has indications toward some kind of acid track, but of course Patrex presents an utterly unique take that has an almost slow motion atonal feel. Crisp and quality percussive elements are also worked through beautifully and help highlight all the twists and turns the funky acid line has to offer.

Acceleration ▶

Awesome, awesome sounds right here. Patrex's deep techno vibes just resonate through and pull the listener deeper and deeper in. Acceleration offers a vast menagerie of synth lines and SFX all melded together to create width and variety across the auditory spectrum that keeps you wanting more and more.

Dreams ▶

Real nice techy vibes right here! Dreams is just so good! From the chugging beat that presses all the right buttons to the oh so twinkly SFX that uplift and inspire. Neat thought through percussive devices and swelling synths are excellently executed, but check the special drop after the breakdown, the crowd goes wild!

Gamma ▶

Edgy and mysterious, Gamma takes you on a journey into the unknown. Just when you think things are going in a certain direction Patrex winds in something unexpected. So the solid beat is just about the only thing you can be sure of, oh and don't get scared by that sinister voice thing, its just a sample or something!
